MONTHLY COMMENTARY

In October, global bond markets recovered – albeit with significant divergence beneath the surface. Central banks on both sides of the Atlantic kept their key interest rates unchanged at their October meetings and, on the whole, provided little new impetus. Despite energy prices continuing to rise, prices of German Bunds and US Treasuries recovered noticeably from the yield highs seen at the end of September. In the five-year maturity segment, yields on German Bunds and US Treasuries fell by around 20 basis points (bps) and just over 35 bps, respectively. In addition to what we consider to be the undervaluation of high-quality bonds, recent developments increasingly reflect concerns about a possible bursting of the AI bubble in the USA and the fact that the ECB's restrictive monetary policy stance is gradually reaching its limits. The latter, particularly in France, exacerbated the outlook for interest expenditure – which was already too high – and led to a wave of selling in French government bonds (OATs). Over the course of the month, the risk premiums on 10-year OATs rose by around 30 bps relative to German Bunds. Risk premiums on other spread products, such as Italian government bonds or corporate bonds, were also broadly around 10–15 bps higher for 10-year maturities, and even higher still in the high-yield segment. Thanks to our (moderately) aggressive duration of just under 11 years and the portfolio's focus on quality, the Fund price recovered noticeably in October. Recent developments have reinforced our view that the ECB's restrictive stance increasingly poses risks to the growth outlook and may lead to collateral damage.
Within the portfolio, we have taken advantage of the short-term volatility among French issuers to accumulate high-quality credits with diversified businesses – such as Air Liquide and Michelin – at favourable valuations.

MONTHLY COMMENTARY - CONTINUED

As part of the first wave of new issues, we have also stepped up our purchases of corporate bonds – both in the investment-grade segment and, for the first time, in the subordinated and high-yield segments (the high-yield allocation was increased from around 3% to 6%) – following a broad-based return of risk premiums to more attractive levels. To free up cash for this, we sold some inflation-linked German and US Treasuries, as well as high-quality covered bonds, during the recovery in real yields. Furthermore, we have further increased our exposure to US dollar risk. As a result, the portfolio's duration has shortened by around 0.4 years overall; however, we continue to benefit significantly from a normalisation of yield levels and, thanks to the now higher corporate bond allocation and the fact that duration gains were achieved primarily through derivatives, we still have a very attractive current yield that acts as a buffer against setbacks.

OPPORTUNITIES

+ Participate in global bond market growth.
+ Income can be generated from regular interest payments.
+ Active interest rate, currency and risk management (e.g. from the use of derivatives).
+ Increase in potential returns through the use of investment-grade bonds, contingent convertible bonds ('CoCo bonds') and bonds with no maturity date ('Perpetuals').

RISKS

- Country, credit and issuer liquidity risk. Also potential exchange rate risks. If securities are illiquid (i.e. thinly traded), there is a risk that it may either not be possible to sell the assets at all or only by accepting a significant discount on the sale price. Screening against an exclusion list may partially restrict the range and number of eligible target investments.
- Investing in bonds may entail price risks, especially in case of rising interest rates on the capital markets.
- Where used, derivatives can have a greater negative impact on the fund value than would be the case if the assets were acquired directly. The value of the fund may also be negatively impacted to a greater extent by the use of investment-grade bonds. This can affect the fund's risk profile and volatility (tendency for the price to fluctuate).
- The limited use of contingent convertible bonds ('CoCo bonds') and bonds with no maturity date ('Perpetuals') entails specific additional risks. 'CoCo bonds' are typically debt instruments that can be converted into the issuer's equity or redeemed in whole or in part if a predefined trigger event occurs. 'CoCo bonds' increase the complexity of the fund and may present a higher liquidity and market risk. 'Perpetuals' have no fixed maturity and may increase the risk of repayment of the bond.

Please read the Prospectus and particularly the RISK WARNINGS section and the specific annex of the subfund to understand the risks and benefits of this product.

INVESTOR PROFILE

GROWTH-ORIENTED:

The fund is appropriate for growth-oriented investors. Due to the composition of the net subfund assets, there is a high degree of risk but also a high degree of profit potential. The risks may consist in particular of currency risk, credit risk and price risk, as well as market interest rate risks.

INVESTMENT HORIZON:

Medium- to long-term: Minimum 4 years

RISK INDICATOR

Lower risk ⟷ Higher risk

1	2	3	4	5	6	7

The risk indicator assumes you keep the product for a minimum of 4 years. The actual risk can vary significantly if you cash in at an early stage and you may get back less. The summary risk indicator ("SRI") is a guide to the level of risk of this product compared to other products. It shows how likely it is that the product will lose money because of movements in the markets or because we are not able to pay you. Unusual market conditions could arise, for example, due to currency, creditworthiness, price, counterparty, liquidity and interest rate risks, as detailed in the sales prospectus. We have classified this product as 3 out of 7, which is a medium-low risk class. This rates the potential losses from future performance at a medium-low level, and poor market conditions are unlikely to impact the Fund's capacity to pay you. This product does not include any protection from future market performance. Please refer to the 'Risk' section of the sales prospectus for more details.
